Making Mistakes

- Making a mistake means getting something wrong.

- It's totally normal to make mistakes in our everyday lives. Nobody is perfect because there's just so much happening all the time. Even though we should try our best to do things right, we have to understand that mistakes will happen.

- Knowing that everyone makes mistakes can actually make us better people. We can double-check our work for mistakes and be nice to others when they mess up. If our mistakes make someone upset, it's important to say sorry.

- Sometimes, making a mistake can make us feel a little embarrassed, and that's okay. Feeling that way helps us learn from our mistakes. We can think about what we could do differently next time so we don't make the same mistake again. After that, we should try to forget about the mistake.

- Making mistakes is totally okay. It happens to everyone. We can apologise when needed and learn from our mistakes to become even better.
